Chapter 1 by Sammy_Luv

Lindsay is your regular teenage girl. She goes to highschool, she is in many sports, she is a straight A student. But there is one thing that sets her apart from other students, her little secret, Lindsay has powers.

Now, no doctors or scientists can explain how this happened to her, she was just born with them. When Lindsay was three, her parents noticed something different about her. Lindsay was born with brown eyes but once she was three, her parents noticed her eye color had changed from brown to a very bright turquoise. Her parents didn't know what to do so they called her doctor and told him what happened. Once they arrived at the doctor's office with Lindsay, the doctor examined Lindsay's eyes. After about a half-hour, the doctor rushed out calling for a nurse, he told her to call one of his close friends, Dr. Richard Hoffman, a scientist. Lindsay was being tested and examined for weeks, scientists trying to figure out why her eye's had changed color. One day while she was in the lab, a scientist had noticed Lindsay's pupil's were the shape of a heart. He immediately told Dr. Hoffman and then he notified Lindsay's parents. After three weeks of work and tests, Dr. Hoffman couldn't find out why Lindsay's eyeball's was changing. "Are her eye's going to be like this forever?" Lindsay's mother asked worryingly. "We have been testing her and we don't know how this could've happened, but we don't know if her eyes will turn back to normal anytime soon" Dr. Hoffman said.
